Leadership

The International Journal of Leadership in Public Services

New editors for 2009

This peer-reviewed Journal includes articles that add to our shared understanding and implementation of leadership skills and knowledge to strengthen and improve public services. It includes both rigorous and qualitative international research, alongside illuminating narratives on the effective exercise of leadership from any stakeholder within the complex system that make up public services.

There is no existing journal that draws together the best of our international research and lived experience of leadership. This is the gap that this Journal aims to fill.

Children's Services

Journal of Children's Services

Research informing policy and practice

This quarterly Journal is designed to encourage the development of outcome-focused services to better safeguard and promote the well-being of vulnerable children and their families. It seeks to improve understanding of the way that child development and applied social research contributes to the evidence base, and increase the integration of children's services.

Topics include: child development research and its implications for forward-looking services; methodological issues and developments and their application to practice; evaluation of innovative services, using quantitative and qualitative methods; promotion of initiatives to forge stronger links between research, policy and practice; and commentary on policy, including interviews with key international, national and local policy-makers.

Journal of Assistive Technologies

Enabling technologies for inclusion in health, support, care and education

This innovative quarterly Journal debates definitions and concepts, and addresses ethics, policy, legislation and issues for day-to-day practice. Articles focus on how people use assistive and enabling technologies, rather than solely on the technology itself, and raise awareness of available technologies.

This Journal will provide you with a user focus on: current and new assistive and enabling technologies; telecare and e-inclusion in health and social care that promotes independence; a clear focus on uses and users of technology; examples of good practice and user perspectives; and a forum for the debate of issues related to users' quality of life and ability to cope.

Contents include: editorial, peer-reviewed articles, policy and debates, case studies, project descriptions and reviews.

Vital information for: academics, researchers, policy-makers, purchasers and providers of technologies, educators, teachers, managers, nurses, social workers; occupational, speech and language therapists; carers and service users.
