Magic of life in a mansion

Audley Court has acquired six new developments across the UK, providing more than 600 new homes with a gross development value in excess of £125m.

Stretching from Maidstone to Derbyshire, the sites will bring a variety of homes designed to provide gracious independent living for older people.

Mote House in Maidstone is a magnificent Georgian mansion in the centre of Mote Park where Audley Court has submitted a planning application for up to 80 new homes.

The development was completed in the reign of King George III and is beautiful Portland stone house set commanding between two gentle valleys.

The park itself is a haven of wildlife and tranquillity, hand in hand with the lively leisure activities nearby town has to offer.

David Wild, sales and marketing director for Audley Court, said: "At Audley Court our aim is to be able to offer more people the opportunity to live an independent, secure and comfortable life in picturesque surroundings but with versatile care and support available when needed.

"With this in mind we have enabled purchasers at our existing developments to lead the lifestyle of their choice.

"This has already proved popular with those who enjoy the flexibility and opportunity to adapt their activities and requirements as they grow older."

The new scheme will be based on the style now familiar at current Audley Court developments where residents benefit from beautiful landscaped grounds with a mix of cottages, apartments and bungalows grouped around impressive central house.

At Maidstone there will be a restaurant, fitness suite, swimming pool, guest rooms, provision for visiting beauticians and hairdressers, experienced care and support staff, security and maintenance people.
